

Opinions as to the results of the recent tariff war and economic disturbances— "What Will the Harvest Be?"

TARIFF PICTURES.

In the year ending June 30th, 1890, our imports of buttons and button forms were valued at $3,207,129.

Imports of these goods were valued at only $1,317,203.

In 1892, this explains the unprecedented prosperity which has come to pearl button workers under the new tariff.

Butler, Brooks, Blaine—is death calling an alphabetical list of our great men?

Notwithstanding the energetic warfare instituted by Senator Wolcott of Colorado upon the new Columbian postage stamps, those expensive specimens of chromatic art are still at the front. Evidently they have come to stick.

Published figures show that the number of persons killed at grange crossings in the city of Chicago last year were 326. This is an appalling total. What possible excuse can there be for such wholesale slaughter? It is time for Chicago to give most serious thought to the question of properly guarding these crossings or else of abolishing them altogether. One death for nearly every day in the year is a record both discreditable and disgraceful.

Two children were playing on a railroad track near Pittsburgh one evening last week when an engine came backing down upon them without their knowledge. Seeing their peril, an Italian ran to their aid, caught them in his arms and saved their lives. He himself was struck by the engine and received probably fatal injuries, literally giving his life for children he did not even know. This man's name, Andrew Pesotti, deserves to be remembered, for he proved himself to be a true hero. Worse subjects for a sermon might easily be found than the gallant deed of Pesotti, who simply acted on a noble impulse and never dreamed that he was doing a grand and heroic thing.

The new Constitution of Kentucky divides the cities and towns of that state, for the purpose of organization and government, into six classes; says The Cincinnati Tribune, and requires that the powers of each class shall be defined and provided for by general laws. The necessity is, therefore, imposed upon the various municipalities in the commonwealth of recasting the heterogeneous laws which have been in power. In Louisville, the only city of the first class, a committee of three competent gentlemen, appointed by its Mayor, drafted a lengthy and elaborate act, to be submitted to the Legislature for the government of that city. The work of the committee has not, however, been altogether satisfactory to the official classes, and this week the committee of the Legislature having the matter in charge will listen to arguments from representatives of the conflicting interests. On the other hand, the draft of the act which has been introduced in the Legislature for the government of cities of the second class, which includes Covington, Newport and Lexington, seems to have been prepared by and in the interest of the official classes and of those particular members of the official class now in office. The citizens of Covington and Newport who are interested solely in local government have, therefore, taken up the matter and prepared an act differing in many important particulars from the one already submitted to the Legislature. The efforts of our neighbors in the making of municipal laws will be watched with interest in Cincinnati, where municipal government has not yet grown beyond the experimental stage. As The Tribune is pledged to the cause of municipal reform, it will notice and criticize from time to time what may be done in that direction in Kentucky.

On and about the 16th a very warm wave will develop, and storms of tropical character will rush up from the equatorial regions, attended by thunder, rain and marked violence in many places. Boreas and Soie will meet on the field of conflict, armed with hailstorms on the North and possibly cyclones on the South side. A Prison Problem.
The prison problem, a thousand conrises soon to be without a guardian, is a serious matter confronting the Kentucky State officers. The success of the Attorney General, held a long meeting recently, and the question was discussed in all of its phases. It was decided that the Secretary, who is the State Auditor, should prepare a bill for the price work to be submitted to the Board Saturday.

It was a question whether the Sinking Fund Commissioners had power to proceed in the matter without authority or specify the matter in the General Assembly. The opinion of the Attorney General upon this point is to the effect that the Sinking Fund Comm<sup>rs</sup> have full power to do as they see fit, and legislation is needed.
